

REMOTE TEMPERATURE SCANNING STATIONS AVAILABLE TO EMPLOYERS

a solution for remote workplace temperature checks*

GRAFTON, WI –Frank Mayer and Associates, Inc. has partnered with remote employee engagement software company Agile Force to provide custom hardware solutions to employers looking to enact remote temperature scanning at their worksites. With the COVID-19 pandemic creating a greater demand for this practice, both companies have worked to integrate a complete solution into the existing Agile Force platform that meets ISO 13154 standards and limits close human interaction.

The result is a cost-effective engagement station that solves challenges companies face as they implement temperature scanning, including privacy and safety concerns as well as labor costs. The station offers companies the ability to scan employees' temperatures with thermal imaging technology that meets current FDA guidance, with results seen by an agent manning a remote desktop.

When temperature screening is no longer a necessity, companies can continue to utilize the station and technology to monitor shift changes, assist employees with human resources needs, distribute PPE, interview job candidates, and more. "Three years ago, we developed a solution to help solve remote engagement challenges with employees," says Michael Walsh, CEO of Agile Force, Inc. "Little did we know, we had built the perfect social distancing tool for all employers."

The kiosks combine best-in-class technology components, including TES America touch technology, to provide a commercial-grade solution with a long lifecycle for the business marketplace. TES America General Manager Gene Halsey says, "We are pleased to be involved in such an important project when employers are looking for answers during this unusually challenging time."

Frank Mayer and Associates, Inc. President Mike Mayer added, "By combining our core competencies, Agile Force, TES America, and Frank Mayer and Associates are going to market with more than just a temperature screening kiosk. We're solving the problem of health screening while also improving operational efficiencies for companies and enabling a safer, more engaged workforce."
