Total Solution Development

✓ Enclosure Design Engineering

Technical design resource at your disposal includes a full complement of highly specialized professionals:

- Industrial Design
- Mechanical, Electrical, and Robotic Engineers

Our teams design each unit from the inside out, based on unique project transaction component needs. Enclosure design capabilities range from uniquely integrated standard models to highly sophisticated full-custom designs.

KIOSK's modular design disciplines support individualized project delivery, completely removing one-size-fits-all constraints.

✓ Modular Application Design

KIOSK's Software Solutions Group has developed a library of transaction code modules that support a deep array of self-service functionality. Leveraging these existing code modules enables Developers to efficiently customize client applications, minimizing development costs and timelines.

Our best-in-class process methodologies guide full definition of System Requirements and Specifications, User Interface flow, and UI design. These disciplines establish solid development foundations. Once defined, a full Statement of Work is created and Agile Development begins.

Applications are integrated on KIOSK's proprietary CORE K-Nect

Remote Management platform, enabling dashboard control of a deployed kiosk network.
